DATES: i 1882-1884.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

The Utah Commission was created in 1882 under the Edmunds Law, a law enacted by the U.S. Congress to define punishment for polygamy and unlawful cohabitation in the territories.

Disqualifying polygamists as voters and office holders was among the penalties of the law. Furthermore, a federally appointed commission took charge of elections, appointing election officers, canvassing votes, and issuing certificates of election.

This volume contains a record of commissions issued by the Utah Commission to registration and elections officers, specifically registrars and judges of elections. There are columns in which are recorded the person's name, title of office, precinct, county, and date of commission for those commissioned from 1882 to 1884.

The rear of the book also contains a list of certificates of election issued to winners of municipal elections held in 1883. This section has the same categories, with the name of the city appearing in the precinct column.

ARRANGEMENT: Volumes and their entries are chronological with the volumes labeled alphabetically. Index entries are alphabetical by

DESCRIPTION:

These seven volumes detail the activities and document the philosophies of members of the Utah Commission. The Commission was established under the federal 1882 Edmunds Act which also vacated all offices in Utah and prevented polygamists from registering to vote, voting, or holding office. The Utah Commission was given oversight of compliance with the act. The duties of the commission were defined as "each and every duty relating to the registration of voters, the conduct of elections, the receiving or rejection of votes, and the canvassing and returning of the same, and the issuing of certificates or other evidence of election" in territorial Utah.

The volumes note presidential appointments of Commission members, pertinent legislation and court rulings, and the dates, times, and attendance for each meeting of the commission along with a description of the business conducted. The major portion is devoted to election procedures including the appointment of registration officers, judges of election, and a board of canvassers along with the creation of rules and regulations for their benefit. The returns from precinct to territory-wide elections are reported. The second most extensive entries are the reports of the commission to the U.S. Secretary of the Interior detailing the commission's activities plus the members' perceptions of the sociopolitical climate in Utah and their suggestions for further federal legislation.

DATES: i 1882-1896.

ARRANGEMENT: There are two sections on the reel. Both are filmed chronologically.

DESCRIPTION:

This series contains the reports, regulations, and decisions issued by the Utah Commission. The record is devoted primarily to the published annual reports made by the commission to the U.S. Secretary of the Interior. The reports detail not only the commission's election-related activities, but the members' perceptions of the sociopolitical climate in Utah and their suggestions for federal legislation. The annual reports frequently summarize for the Interior Secretary the historical context of Mormon and non-Mormon conflicts, both in regard to polygamy and secular matters.

The reports are interspersed with notices of election, appointment forms for registration and election officers, instructions and forms regarding their duties, and correspondence related to rulings on election procedures. Also included are reports of the Industrial Christian Home Association, a home for polygamous wives and children. The Utah Commission served as a Board of Management and Control for the home and was required to make regular reports regarding its operation to Congress.
