SERIES: 3168

4

TITLE: Civil and criminal record books

DATES: 1856-1886.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological

DESCRIPTION:

The Washington County Probate Court originally held jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases, as well as estate distribution. Record Books A, B, and D contain primarily criminal cases and divorce and naturalization records, but also a few guardianships, estate settlements, and land claims adjudication. In the beginning, the probate clerk recorded details of civil and criminal cases, but in 1865 the clerk changed the format to that of court minutes. In 1873, the court ceased to handle civil and criminal cases with the exception of divorce, so from that date Record Book D is exclusively divorce records.

TITLE: Claims abstracts

DATES: 1871-1882.

ARRANGEMENT: By town site.

DESCRIPTION:

The probate court created an abstract or summary of land claims presented during special court sessions held to judge property ownership within Washington County's several communities. The abstracts provide the names of claimants and describe each claim. Most claims contain additional penciled-in information, such as where the deed is recorded, whether the claim was suspended or continued to another session, or the property location on an official map. Abstract Book 1 contains claims in the city of Saint George (1871-1876) and in the Pine Valley town site (1881). Abstract Book 2 contains claims in the Washington town site (1872-1873), the Harrisburg town site (1872-1874), the Santa Clara town site (1882), and the Pinto town site (1885).

TITLE: Estate accounts registers

DATES: 1876-1895.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by date.

DESCRIPTION:

These accounting ledgers contain primarily records of fees collected in conjunction with various actions taken in regard to estates : petitioning for probate, posting notices, administering oaths, etc. Once paid, the entries are crossed out. In many instances the volume almost serves as a register of action, noting the date of action as well as the fee connected. There are also ledger entries pertaining to business licensing, housing criminals, office expenses, divorce case expenses, land certificate registration, etc.

TITLE: Land claims adjudication record books

DATES: 1873-1886.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by special session in most cases.

DESCRIPTION:

Washington County Probate Court's Land Claims Adjudication Books are records of the proceedings of special court sessions held to judge property ownership within Washington County's several cities and towns. The testimony of each claimant, as recorded in the record books, contains proof of his identity, a description of the boundaries for the property he claimed, and a history of his occupancy on the property, including time of arrival and the nature of improvements made. Each testimony is followed by the court's decision about the claim. Special sessions were held to distribute land in the St. George, Santa Clara, Washington and Harrisburg town sites.

DATES: 1874-1878.

ARRANGEMENT: By united order, thereunder chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

In an effort to reinforce self-sufficiency among Church members, Brigham Young organized a number of united orders in the 1870s. The united order was a community system in which members contributed their possessions and labor and received in return according to their needs. The first of these united orders was organized in Saint George in 1874 and in accordance with territorial law (Laws of Utah, 1870, "Providing for Incorporating Associations, for Mining, Manufacturing, Commercial and other Industrial Pursuits," p. 136-137), articles of incorporation were acknowledged before the probate court judge in Washington County. This United Order Book includes articles of association and other records for the United Order of Saint George, as well as two subsequently organized orders, the United Order of Washington, and Saint George First Ward United Order.
