TITLE: Correspondence

DATES: i 1914-1948; 1982-

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological, thereunder alphabetical by surname

DESCRIPTION:

The Board of Pardons corresponds with various court and other state officials, private citizens, and the prisoners themselves regarding parole status and criminal histories of individual inmates. Since the major responsibility of the Board is to determine how long a criminal offender should remain either in direct custody in prisons or jails, or under close supervision as a parolee, most correspondence relates to this decision. Routine correspondence about Board meetings, schedules, or agenda can also be found in the series.

Supporting documents are often attached to the correspondence, and these usually include court information reports and transcripts, or newspaper clippings or petitions about a particular case. Missing records include the files from 1923-1926 and from 1949-1981.

DESCRIPTION:

These files each contain a comprehensive history of a criminal offender which is continually updated. The board members reference this file when they are considering the inmate for release on parole. Only the names of those inmates being considered for parole and release are found in these files. Included in these records are commitment papers, Board of Pardons reports, admittance and assessment records (face sheet), progress reports, incident reports, treatment plans, detainers, disciplinary reports, education and work records, correspondence regarding the inmate, psychological profiles, and pre-sentence investigations. Upon meeting retention of this series, the Board of Pardons will continue to retain "high profile" cases as part of Series 20374. Documents the history of all offenders on probation or parole. Includes offender's name, history of charges, commitments, name of case worker, monthly reports to probation or parole officer, copies of court records, a history of probation or parole, incident reports, restitution data, correspondence and the probation or parole agreement.

APPRAISAL:

Administrative Historical This disposition is based on Utah State General Records Retention Schedule, Schedule 9, Item 29.

This disposition is based on administrative need. In Utah, there are no statutes mandating a retention for inmate records, but there is a statute that limits the maximum parole period for a released inmate to ten years. Because of potential recidivism of the parolees, criminal records should be kept for the entire ten year period. Previous decision: RDR# 76-45, 5 years after closed. In November 2005, the Board determined that the ten years was inadequate to meet their administrative needs and requested it be lengthened to 15 years. In 2010, the retention was lengthened to 20 years.

DESCRIPTION:

This series contains the weekly postings of hearing and review results (decisions) finalized by the board. It also contains the results calendars. The hearing and review results document the following types of hearings: original, parole violations, pardons, transfers, administrative, etc. Their purpose is to determine inmate parole, transfer, release and other actions. The calendars are a daily log which list inmate names and numbers, board participant names, hearing times, and most importantly, the tape count for each hearing. Tape counts serve as finding aids for the original hearing tapes. (Series 14829).

DESCRIPTION:

Minutes have been kept by the Board, as required by law, to record the proceedings of hearings held to determine if individual prisoners were eligible for parole, pardon, commutation, or termination of sentence. During the hearings the prisoner was interviewed by the Board, and interested persons could testify, under oath, for or against the prisoner. Reports of law enforcement and court officials were often presented during the hearing. Summaries of these reports as well as decisions of the Board are also included in the minutes. Factors considered in reaching a decision generally revolved around the criminals prison history, evidence of rehabilitation, and the social and economic resources available to the offender once released. Formal orders issued by the Board or forms indicating that the meeting times of parole hearings were publicized are sometimes attached to the minutes.

TITLE: Prisoners' pardon application case files

DATES: 1892-1949.

ARRANGEMENT: Alphabetical by surname until 1896, thereafter numerical by case number.

ANNUAL ACCUMULATION:

DESCRIPTION:

Case files consist of letters to the Governor, a formal application for a pardon, petitions and letters of support from the public and officials connected to the case and during the first 40 years, case files often contained court transcripts, biographical sketches, prison evaluations and a wide variety of related documentation. Cases illustrate the process of review by the board of cases of prisoners incarcerated in the Utah prison system to determine if they should be released before their regular sentence ended. Documents contain personal data about the prisoner, criminal activity, family background and evaluation of the prisoner's adjustment to incarceration.

In Utah, the release of a convicted felon from the prison system began with an application made by the prisoner. During the territorial period applications were made directly to the Governor, usually in the form of a letter asking for a pardon or release from prison. With the creation of the Board of Pardons by the state constitution in 1896, the process of obtaining some form of release from prison became more formalized. The filing of an application with the Board initiated the process of scheduling a hearing, evaluating the individual prisoner, and either approving or denying the application for release.
